The installation also quartered another unit whose men were much younger than the regular soldiers. The men of this unit also received military training. They were caps with red-and-white markings. 1  2. In 1953, older men in the district of Ortelsburg, who had not yet served with the Polish Army were called up. Both Germans and Poles were affected by this measure. A 30-year-old German who had already served in the German Armed Forces was drafted into the Polish infantry for a three months' course which was held in a large cantonment near Muschaken (R 54/E 71) from July to September 1953. After completion of his training, this German said that he would be assigned to a unit stationed at Allenstein (R 54/E 66) in case of nobilization, and others of his fellow trainees would have to report to an infantry unit in	25X -
